6 | 15th anniversary of Cyril Ramaphosa Foundation

At its establishment in 2004, the Foundation set its mandate to support initiatives to improve education and grow small black businesses. It committed to spend R100 million on social investment programmes over 10 years as the most direct means to improve the quality of life for South Africa's people and foster an inclusive and empowered society.

By 2019, it has contributed over R359 million and additionally leveraged over a billion rand through its partner entities to programmes that support the development of education, youth, small and medium enterprises, and vulnerable children and women.

Thari provides psychosocial support for women and children and facilitates multi-sectoral networks of local organisations and professional services to address social challenges in school communities.

By February 2019, well over a thousand psychosocial support interventions had been undertaken, including interviews, home visits, referrals and group therapy sessions, and 1 236 children had been reached through Safe Park programmes.

“Since Thari arrived at our school, everything changed. They’ve made a Safe Park for us. If we have family problems we can talk about them”

“Cyril Ramaphosa Foundation is about creating opportunities and changing lives”.

Cyril Ramaphosa, Chairman

“Cyril Ramaphosa Foundation is about creating opportunities and changing lives. It is about making a difference where a difference is most needed. It is about the shy smile of the schoolgirl who has just received her first pair of glasses. It is about the chalkboard that has now come into focus and the world of opportunity that has opened up. It is about the poor student who taught himself to type on a cardboard cut-out keyboard and who now is a successful professional.

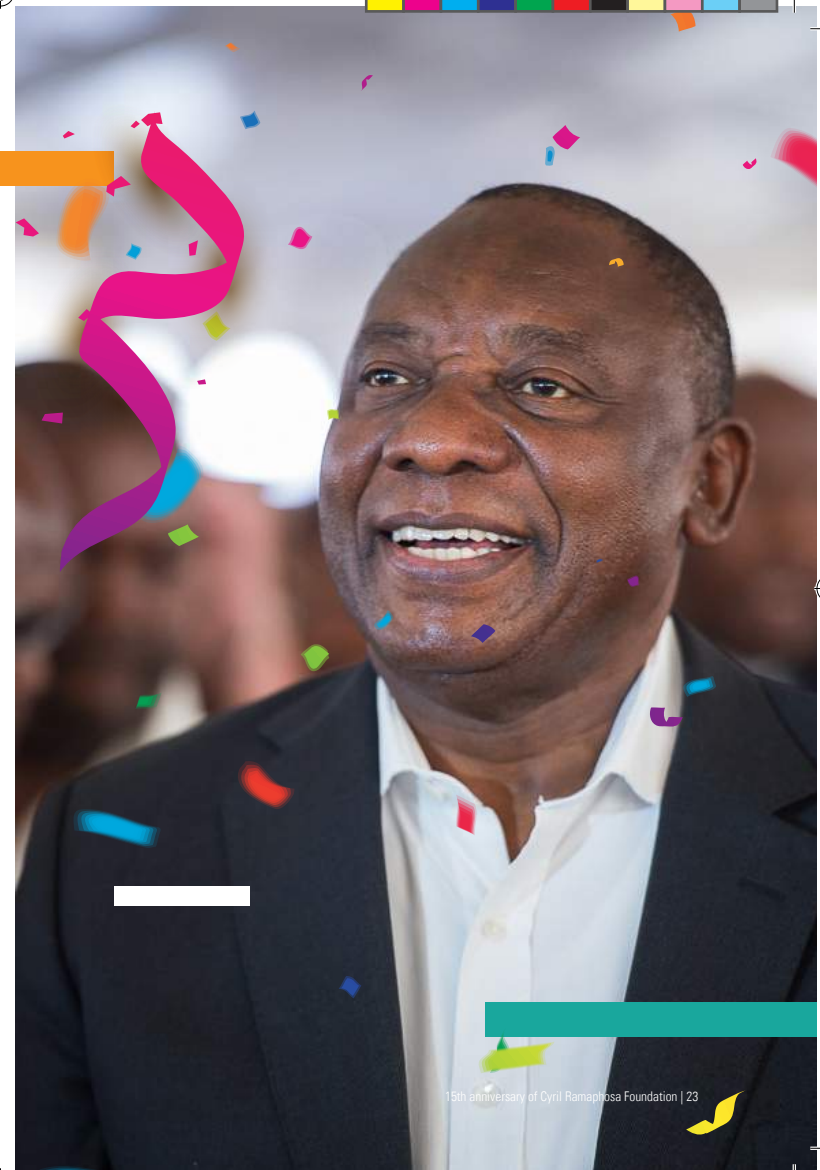

It is about the retrenched factory worker who had the temerity to start his own manufacturing business. It is about hours spent in new libraries, games played on new sports fields. It is about teachers confident in their subjects and learners engrossed in their lessons. It is about the small things. School toilets that flush. Tuition fees that are paid on time. Small businesses that are tax compliant.

It is about schools that have been utterly transformed, businesses that have grown from one employee to a hundred, and cattle herders who have become accountants.

It is about changing lives"

Cyril Ramaphosa

Chairman, Cyril Ramaphosa Foundation
